Indonesian Diaspora Network in Taiwan Visited TAEF

Wednesday, December 11, 2019

Members of the Indonesian Diaspora Network in Taiwan visited TAEF, hoping to know more about Taiwan's New Southbound Policy. They were welcomed by Director Dr. Alan Hao Yang.

Indonesian Diaspora Network in Taiwan (IDN) is an organization that promotes connection and friendship among Indonesian migrants in Taiwan, and cooperation between Taiwan and Indonesia in areas such as business, youth and education, immigration, food and culture, and international relations. During the discussion, many members of the IDN expressed their interest in TAEF's Youth Program, and expected TAEF to bridge partners in governmental and private sectors to support more Indonesian students to participate in exchange programs in Taiwan.

Iman Adipurnama, assistant professor at National Taiwan University of Science and Technology, pointed out that as more and more Indonesian students are participating in Taiwan's higher education schemes, it is important to provide students with professional advice and support for career development so that they can be better integrated into the local job market. Endhah Kartika Dhewi shared her interest in the cultural cooperation between Taiwan and Indonesia, and invited members of TAEF to attend a cultural event at the National Taiwan Museum on December 22, hosted by the IDN.

TAEF Participated in LEADING ASIA Knowledge Cocreation Workshop at GRIPS, Tokyo

Thursday, December 5, 2019

A National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS) delegation led by Executive Vice President and Professor Dr. Kiyotaka Yokomichi visited the TAEF on 1 October 2019 to discuss both organizations' ongoing programs and research interests. During the discussions, both sides expressed interest in initiating a collaboration for 2020 on young leaders and jointly organizing a workshop on a shared issue area.

In order to better understand GRIPS' objectives and to better explore how to proceed with the planned collaboration, TAEF has been invited to attend the LEADING Asia Knowledge Co-Creation Workshop held on 5-6 December 2019 in Tokyo, Japan. While Taiwan is normally not included in the LEADING Asia Workshops, the TAEF has been invited to observe in the workshop proceedings as well as to engage the participants, most of which are from academia, government human resources training organizations, and other relevant institutions. TAEF and GRIP's shared interest in Southeast Asia is seen as a good area of collaboration for future projects.

Assistant research fellows Yuri Baral and Ding-Liang Chen at TAEF, along with Senior Executive Officer Da-Ching Yang at the Office of Trade Negotiations, Executive Yuan, had participated the workshop, introducing Taiwan's New Southbound Policy to participants from Vietnam, Thailand, the Philippines, Myanmar, Malaysia, Indonesia, Cambodia, and Japan. TAEF's delegation had also endeavored to foster opportunities for future cooperation with organizations from the above countries.

Taiwan Seeks to Increase New Southbound Visitors

Tuesday, December 10, 2019

The government aims to increase visitors to the nation from countries targeted by the New Southbound Policy by 200,000 annually starting next year, sources said on Sunday. Visitors from these countries are expected to reach nearly 2.8 million people this year, sources said.

The government this year has funded internships in countries covered by the policy for 2,000 Taiwanese post-secondary students and plans to subsidize 2,500 students next year, they said.

The government is assisting businesses with the transition to South and Southeast Asian markets, with a focus on cosmetics and beauty products, as well as medical and food products, they said, adding that some businesses are opening stores in these countries, while others are expanding through online retail platforms.

Act East and New Southbound Policy Complement Each

Other

Saturday, December 7, 2019

 ${f I}$ n this transitional period of uncertainty of trade, future opportunity is right for Taiwan's new Southbound Policy to complement India's Act East Policy and shift its business interests, both in terms of investment and manufacturing, to India. The two trading partners need to move at a rapid pace. The bilateral agreements between the two are congenial to confidence building amongst investors. However, there is an important aspect of bilateral agreement, i.e., "Safe and Secure passage of Seaborne Trade and delivery of Public Goods", which remains to be addressed.

The two trading partners, India and Taiwan, could share the responsibility—Taiwan can ensure the security of Taiwanese and Indian flagged merchant ships east of the Malacca Straits and India can manage the security west of the Malacca Straits. This would necessitate joint training for evolving common practices and procedures. Based on the IMO's assessment, the two trading partners could make modifications in the future to suit the safety requirements of ships, cargo and crew. Exchange of information on the movement of these cargo ships is germane to maintaining useful maritime domain awareness and response mechanism to emerging threats evolved jointly.
